

Lidl Ireland recalls Deluxe Wild Salmon as allergenic ingredients are not declared in English

Lidl Ireland is recalling two varieties of Deluxe Wild Salmon because they contain wheat (gluten), fish, milk, egg and mustard which are not mentioned in English on the label.

This means the products are a possible health risk for anyone with an allergy to fish or mustard and /or an allergy or intolerance to wheat, gluten, egg, milk or milk constituents.

Our advice to consumers If you have bought the above products and have an allergy to fish or mustard and /or an allergy or intolerance to wheat, gluten, egg, milk or milk constituents, do not eat them. Instead return them to the store from where they were bought for a full refund.

About allergy alerts

Sometimes there will be a problem with a food product that means it should not be sold. Then it might be 'withdrawn' (taken off the shelves) or 'recalled' (when customers are asked to return the product). Sometimes foods have to be withdrawn or recalled if there is a risk to consumers because the allergy labelling is missing or incorrect or if there is any other food allergy risk. When there is a food allergy risk, the FSA will issue an Allergy Alert.
