1 Background and purpose

1.1 Introduction

The UK's food system is complex. It is essential that food continues to remain safe, authentic, affordable and sustainable in a future affected by climate change, global population growth and innovations in the way food is produced, distributed and consumed, both nationally and globally.

The Food Standards Agency (FSA) is set up to protect the interests of the consumer through a range of activities, including regulation of food businesses and developing and targeting messages and initiatives for the public. The FSA's strategy for 2015 to 2020, Food We Can Trust,¹ renews its commitment to put consumers first.

The Food and You Survey is the FSA's principal source of methodologically robust and representative evidence on consumers' reported food-related activities and attitudes. Understanding the UK population's reported behaviour, attitudes and knowledge in relation to food issues is key to measuring the FSA's progress towards its strategic objectives, providing evidence that supports the FSA's campaigns and other activities, and identifying topics for further research or action.

1.2 About the FSA

The FSA was formed in 2000 as an independent non-ministerial government department, governed by a Board whose members have extensive knowledge and experience in a wide range of sectors relevant to the FSA. The FSA was set up to protect public health from risks which may arise in connection with the consumption of food (including risks caused by the way in which it is produced or supplied), and otherwise to protect the interests of consumers in relation to food.

The FSA is responsible for food safety and hygiene in England, Wales and Northern Ireland, and is committed to ensuring the general public can have trust and confidence in the food they buy and eat.² The FSA also enforces standards through its regulatory responsibilities. In 2010 the FSA launched the national Food Hygiene Rating Scheme (FHRS)³ in order to provide the public with information about the hygiene standards in food premises, helping them to make informed decisions when eating out.

The FSA also provides guidance to consumers on best practices for food safety and hygiene in order to minimise the risk of food poisoning. This includes advice on cleaning, cooking, cross-contamination and chilling (collectively known as the '4 Cs'). Guidance is also given on the use of date labels (such as 'use by' and 'best before' dates) and storage instructions on foods to help ensure safety of food eaten at home.

Since its inception in 2000, the FSA has commissioned surveys to collect quantitative data on the public's reported behaviour, attitudes and knowledge relating to food and food safety. Between 2000 and 2007 the FSA ran the Consumer Attitudes Survey (CAS). In 2008 the FSA's Social Science Research Committee (SSRC) recommended that a new survey – Food and You – be developed.

1.3 The Food and You survey

Background

Food and You is a biennial, cross-sectional survey of adults aged 16 years and over living in private households in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. Random probability sampling ² In 2010 responsibility for nutrition in England transferred from the FSA to the Department of Health, and subsequently, in 2013, to Public Health England (PHE). Responsibility for nutrition in Wales transferred to the Welsh Government in 2010. Responsibility for nutrition and healthy eating practices remains the responsibility of the FSA in Northern Ireland. Food safety and nutrition in Scotland is the responsibility of Food Standards Scotland (FSS), a non-ministerial government department of the Scottish Government, established by the Food Act 2015.

³ <https://www.food.gov.uk/safety-hygiene/food-hygiene-rating-scheme>

ensures that everyone in these countries has a known chance of being selected to take part, so the results are representative of the population.

The first three waves of the survey were carried out by TNS BMRB (in 2010, 2012 and 2014 respectively). The National Centre for Social Research (NatCen), in collaboration with the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA), have been contracted to carry out Waves 4, 5 and 6 of the survey.

Food and You has been an important means of measuring progress against the FSA's strategic objectives⁴ and topics have reflected the changing priorities and interests of the FSA, summarised below:

- Wave 1 (2010) assessed consumer attitudes and behaviour to food-related issues falling under the FSA's remit. Following Wave 1, the questionnaire was reviewed extensively in light of responsibility for nutrition in England and Wales being transferred from FSA to the Department of Health (England) and Welsh Government in 2010.
- Wave 2 (2012) focused on food safety and hygiene issues
- Wave 3 (2014) was designed to monitor changes since the previous two waves in attitudes and reported behaviour about food issues, to identify at-risk groups for food safety issues, and to explore public understanding of issues regarding the FSA's targets. For the first time at Wave 3, results from Food and You were published as an official statistic, reflecting the robust methodology of the survey and the development of a regular time series of data.
- Wave 4 (2016) included new questions to cover affordability of food, choice, security and sustainability.
- Wave 5 (2018) continued this focus and additionally included questions about public awareness of and trust in the FSA.

4 The FSA strategic plan up to 2015 is available at <https://webarchive.nationalarchives.gov.uk/20120403143220/http://food.gov.uk/multimedia/pdfs/strategy20102015.pdf>

Aims

Food and You provides data about the prevalence of different attitudes, reported behaviour and knowledge about ways in which food is purchased, stored, prepared and eaten. The aims of Wave 5 were to provide the FSA with data on food hygiene and food safety and other food-related issues in order to:

- explore public understanding and engagement with food safety;
- assess knowledge of messages and interventions aimed at raising awareness and changing behaviour;
- describe public attitudes to food production and the food system;
- monitor trends in reported behaviour, attitudes and knowledge (compared with data from the previous four waves or from other sources);
- identify target groups for future interventions (e.g. those most at risk or those among whom FSA policies and initiatives are likely to have the greatest impact); and
- provide indicators and evidence for tracking the FSA's strategic plans.

1.4 Food and You Wave 5 reports

This Technical report provides background and methodological information for Wave 5 of Food and You, data collection for which was conducted between 18 June and 31 December 2018.

Findings are presented in five reports, published by the FSA. The Combined report presents a descriptive overview of the findings for England Wales and Northern Ireland, based on the core sample (see Chapter 2 for a description of the sample design). Trends across the five survey waves are reported where available, and Wave 5 results are presented by key socio-demographic factors such as gender, age group, household size, presence of children in household, income and working status.

Additional respondents were interviewed in Northern Ireland and Wales to provide sufficient cases to enable country-level analyses of the survey findings. The Combined report is therefore complemented by additional reports published separately which are based on the boosted sample:

- Country comparison report – focusing on differences between the three nations
- Northern Ireland report – focusing on the Northern Ireland results
- Wales report – focusing on the Wales results.

Each report is accompanied by detailed tables of results in Excel format.

More detail on the Wave 5 questionnaire development can be found in the Development report.

The complete data set will be available in the UK Data Archive.⁵

2 Sample Design

2.1 Sample design

Food and You uses a random probability sample of adults aged 16 years and over, living in private households in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. Random probability sampling ensures that everyone in these countries has an equal chance of being selected to take part, so the results are representative of the population.

The overall sample for Wave 5 consisted of:

- A core sample, which was representative of the adult population of England, Wales and Northern Ireland.
- A boost sample of respondents in Northern Ireland and Wales, to enable more detailed analysis at country level.
- Reserve samples in England, Northern Ireland and Wales, selected to ensure that the target number of interviews was achieved in each country.
- An additional boost sample in Wales.⁶

Table 1 Target number of interviews (core, boost and reserve sample) Food and You (Wave 5)

	No. of addresses issued	Target sample
England	4,800	2,196
Wales	1,275	525
Northern Ireland	1,000	525
Total	7,075	3,246

⁶ Due to resource problems, the additional boost sample was not issued in Northern Ireland (NI).

2.2 Sampling frame and stratification

A multi-stage, random probability cross-sectional design was used. The sample was drawn from the Postcode Address File (PAF), a list of all the addresses in the UK.⁷

To improve cost effectiveness, addresses were clustered into Primary Sampling Units (PSUs), small geographical areas based on postcode sectors. These were stratified, that is they were sorted first by region (Government Office Region, with Wales and Northern Ireland each treated as separate regions). Within each region the PSUs were sorted by the percentage of heads of households in a non-manual occupation,⁸ the percentage of households with no car, and population density (persons per hectare). This was to ensure correct socio-economic representation when the PSUs were selected.

PSUs were selected using a random probability method, and then 25 addresses were randomly selected from each PSU.⁹

Table 2 Selected Primary Sample Units (PSU's), Food and You (Wave 5)

	England	Wales	Northern Ireland (NI)	Total
Core	183	10	5	198
Boost	-	29	35	64
Main stage total	183	39	40	262
Reserve	9	2	-	11
Additional boost	-	10	-	10
Mainstage + reserve	192	51	40	283

7 The sample was drawn from the 'small users' sub-file of the Postcode Address File (PAF), a list of all the addresses (delivery points) which receive fewer than 25 articles of mail a day.

8 This used the National Statistic Socio Economic Classification (NS-SEC), an occupationally based classification system that categorises people according to type of employment. For this purpose grouped into three categories: managerial, intermediate and routine/manual occupations.

9 Sectors with fewer than 500 addresses were grouped with a neighbouring sector and treated as a single PSU.

2.3 Selecting addresses and participants at home

A total of 7,075 addresses were selected from 283 Primary Sampling Units (PSUs): 192 PSUs in England, 51 in Wales and 40 in Northern Ireland.

At each address, the interviewer established the number of dwelling units¹⁰ and, in cases where there were two or more (e.g. different flats or bedsits), selected one dwelling unit at random using a Kish grid.¹¹ Within each selected dwelling unit the interviewer enumerated the number of households¹² and, in cases where there were two or more (e.g. house shares), selected one household at random, again using a Kish grid.

Within the selected household, one adult aged 16 years and over was selected to take part in the Food and You survey. In instances where there was more than one eligible adult within the household, the interviewer listed all members in alphabetical order of their first name and made a random selection using a Kish grid.

¹² Households were defined as groups of people who share cooking facilities and a living room, sitting room or dining room.

3 Fieldwork procedures & survey protocols

3.1 Fieldwork

Fieldwork for Food and You Wave 5 was carried out between 18 June and 31 December 2018. NatCen carried out fieldwork in England and Wales; NISRA conducted fieldwork in Northern Ireland.

Fieldwork in England and Wales was issued in four batches between June and October 2018. Between November and December 2018, an extra boost sample was issued for Wales to meet the target number of interviews.

Table 3 Fieldwork timings in England and Wales, Food and You (Wave 5)

Batch	Start date	End date
1	18th June 2018	05th August 2018
2	16th July 2018	26th August 2018
3	14th August 2018	25th September 2018
4	10th September 2018	21st October 2018
5 Wales additional boost	19th November 2018	31st December 2018

Fieldwork in Northern Ireland was issued in five batches between the beginning of July and end of November 2018.

Table 4 Fieldwork timings in Northern Ireland (NI), Food and You (Wave 5)

Batch	Start date	End date
1	2nd July 2018	4th August 2018
2	30th July 2018	1st September 2018
3	27th August 2018	29th September 2018
4	1st October 2018	3rd November 2018
5	29th October 2018	1st December 2018

An advance letter and leaflet describing the purpose of the survey and inviting households to participate was sent to all sampled addresses before the fieldwork start date. A few days later, interviewers visited the addresses to determine whether the address was private, residential and occupied. They then carried out the selection process.

Interviewers were required to make up to four attempts to contact each sampled address. These calls were made on different days of the week, and at different times of day. At least three calls were made on a weekday evening (after 6pm) or at a weekend to maximise the probability of contact with the household members. Also, recontact letters were sent to addresses where interviewers made multiple unsuccessful attempts to make contact to encourage household members to participate in the survey.

3.2 The questionnaire

Questionnaire development comprised:

- a review of the questions included in Wave 4 (to determine which should be retained, removed or amended and where new questions needed to be developed to meet new FSA strategic priorities, such as trust in food, the food system, and trust in FSA)
- two rounds of cognitive testing to inform development of all new and any significantly altered questions, and
- a pilot study which, alongside identification of practical issues, supported development and final adjustments to questionnaire content and length.

Detailed information about the design and administration of the cognitive testing and pilot study and the resulting findings is provided in the Development report (published separately).

The final Wave 5 questionnaire comprised ten distinct modules, relating to a range of different food-related behaviours, attitudes and perceptions.

Table 5 Questionnaire modules, Food and You (Wave 5)

Module	Types of questions
Household Information	Who lives in the household and their relationship to one another
Eating Patterns	Cooking responsibilities Dietary restrictions, including allergies and intolerances Types of food eaten Eating out and takeaways
Shopping	Where people shop for food How fresh meat and fish are packaged Attitudes to buying food
Food Insecurity	Access to food sufficient to sustain an active and healthy life
Food Safety	How people prepare, cook and store their food Experience of food poisoning
Food Issues	Knowledge and attitudes concerning chemicals in food
Healthy Eating (Northern Ireland only)	Types of food people eat Eatwell plate task The impact of food on health
Health	General health questions
Attitudes towards the FSA and the food chain	Awareness and trust in the FSA and other institutions Perceptions of the food chain
Demographics	Accommodation Employment of household reference person (HRP) Income of household members Education Ethnicity Religion Internet access Recontact questions

Questions asking about the Household Reference Person (HRP)¹³ were used to determine the socio-economic classification of the household.¹⁴

¹³ The HRP is the person in whose name the property is owned or rented; if this is joint, then the one with the highest income. Where there were two relevant adults with equal income, the eldest person was selected as HRP.

¹⁴ Questions were asked to ascertain whether the HRP was in paid work. If the HRP had ever worked, there were further questions about their current or most recent job in order to classify HRPs into the National Statistics Socio-economic Classification (NS-SEC) groupings.

3.3 Parent/guardian consent

If the randomly-selected respondent was aged 16 or 17 and lived with a parent or guardian, verbal consent was obtained from the parent or guardian before the interviewer approached the young person. Once the parent or guardian consent had been obtained, the survey was introduced to the selected young person in the usual way. If a resident parent or guardian could not be contacted, or refused consent, the interview with the young person was not attempted (and the case was deemed 'unproductive'). If the selected respondent was aged 16 or 17 but not living with a parent or guardian, then consent from a parent or guardian was not required.

3.4 Interviewer briefings

All interviewers working on Food and You received a face-to-face briefing before undertaking interviews and were monitored during their assignment. Interviewers were also issued with comprehensive written instructions covering survey procedures.

The briefing sessions were designed to provide the interviewers with background to the survey and its aims, and to inform them of the procedural details of the data collection. The areas covered were:

- an introduction to the Food and You survey
- an overview of the history, role and responsibilities of the FSA
- the aims, objectives and past uses of the Food and You data
- an overview of interviewer tasks and the survey documents
- instructions for the participant selection procedure
- discussion of methods for engaging potential participants, and
- a practice CAPI interview.

3.5 Advance Documents

Information describing the purpose of the survey and inviting households to take part was posted to all sampled addresses. This was expected to arrive a couple of days before the start of each of the four fieldwork periods.

Advance letter

An advance letter, printed on paper headed with the logos of the FSA and NatCen (or NISRA in Northern Ireland), gave notice that an interviewer would call at the address and provided some background information about the survey. This emphasised the social relevance and value of the study in order to encourage participation and maximise response rates. The letter also included answers to some 'frequently asked questions'. Participants were provided with a freephone telephone helpline and email address which they could contact for any queries about the survey or if they wished to opt out.

Advance leaflet

The letter was accompanied by an advance leaflet which provided an engaging insight into the important work of the FSA, as well as the social value of the survey. The leaflet provided more detail about the types of questions that would be asked and how the findings from the survey would be used by the FSA to support its work.

Both documents included contact details (post, telephone and email) for NatCen (and NISRA in Northern Ireland) and the FSA, in case the recipient had any concerns or further questions. The documents also contained links to the FSA and participant websites should the participant wish to find out more about the FSA and its work and/or additional background information about the survey.

General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) Flyer

New in Wave 5, a GDPR flyer provided more comprehensive information about data protection and informed the participant about what will happen to the information they provide. Whilst the advance letter already included some of this information, the flyer was designed to be more comprehensive and ensure new requirements¹⁵ under GDPR were being met.

3.6 Tokens of appreciation

As a token of appreciation, the letter also included a voucher, redeemable for cash at any branch of the Post Office.

In Wave 4, advance letters included unconditional £10 Post Office vouchers for all households. For Wave 5, an experiment was conducted in England and Wales¹⁶ to explore whether the response rate could be improved by varying the value of the voucher (£5, £10 or £15) while keeping the overall costs the same.

The likelihood of households to respond to the survey was calculated using a combination of achieved response rates in the area in previous waves as well as other indicators, such as levels of deprivation in the area. The value of the voucher assigned to an address was adjusted based on the predicted likelihood of the address to respond. Areas were categorised as having a 'low', 'average' or 'high' likelihood. In areas where the predicted response was low, a higher value voucher (£15) was assigned. Where the predicted response was high, a lower value voucher was offered (£5). In areas where response was categorised as average, the standard £10 voucher was offered. Additionally, a randomly selected control group all received a £10 voucher.

¹⁵ <https://ico.org.uk/for-organisations/guide-to-data-protection/guide-to-the-general-data-protection-regulation-gdpr/>

¹⁶ The Northern Ireland (NI) sample, issued reserve sample and the Wales extra boost sample were offered the £10 unconditional incentive only and were therefore not part of the experiment.

Table 6 below shows fieldwork outcomes by group. The response rates were similar, indicating that the effect of varying the value of the token of appreciation in this way did not have an effect on response rates.

Table 6 First issue fieldwork outcomes by voucher type, Food and You (Wave 5), England and Wales

	Variable value (£5/£10/£15)	Control group (all £10)
Issued addresses (n)	4175	1375
Ineligible ¹⁷ (n)	447	130
Eligible (n)	3728	1245
Productive addresses (n)
Fully complete interview (n)	1800	600
Partially complete interview (n)	3	1
Non-contacts (n)	310	108
Unknown eligibility (n)	74	5
Refusals (n)	1357	455
Other non-response (n)	184	76
Response rate¹⁸ (%)	48.3	48.2

In addition, interviewers were issued with two additional £25 vouchers. These were used by interviewers at their own discretion to encourage participation from those aged 16 to 49. People in this age group are underrepresented in Food and You, as with other general population surveys, so the use of additional tokens of appreciation was intended to improve the quality of the sample. 262 of these vouchers were used, but it was not possible to assess their impact on overall response.

17 Ineligible addresses are those addresses which are identified as non-residential addresses or addresses that are not occupied as a main residence.

18 Response rate is based on eligible addresses for which there is a final outcome.

3.7 Interviewer field documents

Interviewers were provided with copies of the advance letter and leaflet. In addition, they were provided with:

- a comprehensive set of project instructions.
- a pre-labelled Address Record Form (ARF) for each address in their assignment to record details of the address, selections, contact attempts and the outcome of the visit (e.g. whether or not the selected individual was willing to take part).
- a doorstep laminate displaying infographics relating to food issues for use as a visual aid to encourage interest in the content and value of the findings of the survey.
- a set of show cards for use during the interview. Interviewers were prompted to show respondents the relevant show card which displayed the possible answers to particular questions, and the relevant code for the interviewers to input. For a number of questions, alternative versions of showcards with response options in the reverse order were produced, to be shown to a random 50% of respondents. This was done to minimise potential bias from response option ordering.
- a set of cards for the Eatwell Guide task consisting of a blank version of the Eatwell Guide and corresponding cards representing different food groups (Northern Ireland only).
- thank you letters providing information on sources of advice regarding food hygiene, safety practices and insecurity, as well as organisation contacts at NatCen (and NISRA in Northern Ireland) and the FSA.

3.8 Resources for respondents

Participant website

A website dedicated to providing information for potential participants about Food and You was hosted on the NatCen website. This contained information about who NatCen are, the purpose and aims of the study, how they have been chosen and reasons to take part: <http://www.natcen.ac.uk/foodandyou>.

Food and You helpline

A freephone survey helpline was set up and hosted by NatCen; the advance letter included the freephone number, which participants could call if they had any queries about the study. The helpline was answered during office hours with an answer phone operating out of hours. Advance documents also contained FSA contact details, in case participants had any queries for the FSA.

Email address

Respondents were provided with a dedicated email address foodandyou@natcen.ac.uk to which they could direct questions and other comments. These were responded to promptly in the same way as calls to the helpline.

3.9 Welsh language requirements

In order to comply with the Welsh Language Act 1993, as well as the FSA's own Welsh language policy, Welsh language versions of the advance letter and leaflet were sent to addresses in Wales, alongside the English language versions. Welsh language options were produced for the NatCen participant website, as well as for the NatCen telephone helpline, ensuring respondents would have their calls returned by a Welsh language speaker. Welsh-speaking interviewers were available to carry out interviews in Welsh on request, and all respondents in Wales were issued with a Welsh language version of the post-interview thank you letter, alongside the English-language version.

3.10 Response rates

Table 7 shows response rates achieved overall and in the individual countries. For Wave 5 overall, the response rate was 47.5% in England, 47.9% in Wales, 52.0% in Northern Ireland and 48.2% in all countries combined.

The overall response was 4 percentage points lower than in Wave 4 when it was 52.6%. The fall in response was lowest in England (from 50.4% in Wave 4), higher in Northern Ireland (from 57.8%) and highest in Wales (from 58.4%).

Table 7 Response rates by country, Food and You (Wave 5)

Batch	England	Wales	Northern Ireland ¹⁹	Overall
Issued addresses (n)	4800	1275	994	7069
Ineligible ²⁰ (n)	457	158	108	723
Productive addresses (n)
Fully complete interview ²¹ (n)	2063	535	461	3059
Non-contacts (n)	397	92	103	592
Unknown eligibility (n)	59	27	21	107
Refusals (n)	1581	410	268	2259
Other non-response (n)	240	52	27	319
Response rate²² (%)	47.5	47.9	52.0	48.2

¹⁹ Six addresses could not be issued to interviewers in Northern Ireland (NI) for resource reasons.

²⁰ Ineligible addresses are those addresses which are identified as non-residential addresses or addresses that are not occupied as a main residence.

²¹ The ten partially productive individuals started but did not complete the interview. These cases did not count towards the response rate and were not included in the analysis dataset.

²² Response rate is based on eligible addresses for which there is a final outcome.

4 Data preparation

All aspects of coding and data preparation were carried out by specialist staff at NatCen. Personal information was handled securely and in accordance with the Data Protection Act (1998).

4.1 Coding and editing

Checks were built into CAPI programme to allow issues (e.g. unlikely or incorrect answers) to be resolved during the interview where possible.

Collected data were then checked during an office edit and coding stage. Data were submitted to a comprehensive edit which checked valid ranges and routing and all interviewer notes opened during the interview were scrutinised.

Experienced coders examined a number of open-ended questions on a question-by-question basis in order to maximise coding consistency. The answers were examined to determine whether they could be back-coded into one of the pre-codes. If these answers did not fit into any of the existing codes and similar themes were coming up, then new codes were raised; otherwise the answers were coded as 'other'.

Participants were asked about the industry in which the HRP was employed and their occupation. If the HRP was not currently in employment the question was asked about their most recent job; for those with more than one job, details were collected about their main job. The occupations of HRPs were coded to sub-major groups using the Standard Occupational Classification (SOC 2010) and Standard Industrial Classification of Economic Activities (SIC).²³

²³ <https://www.ons.gov.uk/methodology/classificationsandstandards/standardoccupationalclassificationsoc/soc2010>

4.2 Weighting

Core survey weighting

The Wave 5 core survey comprised of 2,241 interviews with adults aged 16 and over across England, Wales and Northern Ireland (one adult per household). The issued samples in Wales and Northern Ireland were boosted by increasing the sample to around 500 in each country, to enable more detailed analysis at country level. However, this weighting note only refers to the core sample.. The weighting procedure for Food and You Wave 5 followed procedures applied in the first four waves of the study and included the calculation of selection (design) weights which were applied to correct for the lower selection probabilities of adults in multi-adult households/dwellings, as well as for the selection of one dwelling if more were found at the address selected.

In order to ensure the results from each country were representative for that country's population, the achieved interviews were calibrated separately for each country to known population distributions of:

- England: working status by gender, age by gender, and region
- Wales and Northern Ireland: working status by gender, and age group

This accounts for differential non-response on these variables. The three weights resulting from calibration within each country were combined to create cweight – to be used for the analysis within country.

The Wave 5 population totals for age, gender and region were obtained from the ONS 2017 Mid-Year Population Estimates. The working status data was gathered from the latest available Labour Force Survey (LFS) data, released in November 2018. Employment data for individuals aged 16 years and over was split in to four categories as follows:

- Female in employment
- Female not in employment
- Male in employment
- Male not in employment.

Finally, the countries were scaled to their correct proportion and combined to calculate a weight for analysis of the whole dataset (ukweight).

Design Effect

The design effect²⁴ caused by the complex sample design and the weighting of the sample was also calculated. The overall design effect for the whole dataset is 1.39. The actual sample size divided by the design effect equals the effective sample size: 1,608 cases. This has been taken into account when evaluating the statistical significance of differences described in the survey reports.

Profile of the achieved core sample

Table 8 compares the profile of the unweighted and weighted core Wave 5 sample with the population.

²⁴ The design effect takes into account the actual complexity of the sample design. This is the ratio of the actual variance, under the sampling method used, to the variance computed under the assumption of simple random sampling.

Northern Ireland core and boost weighting

The Wave 5 core and boost sample for Northern Ireland (NI) comprised of 467 interviews with adults aged 16 and over (one adult per household). The issued sample in Northern Ireland was boosted by increasing the sample to around 500, to enable more detailed analysis.

The weighting procedure for Northern Ireland (core and boost samples) followed procedures applied in the first four waves of the study and included calculation of selection (design) weights and calibration. For Northern Ireland, selection weights were calculated at the core weighting stage as the Northern Ireland core and boost PSUs were issued at the same time. The achieved interviews were then calibrated to known Northern Ireland population distributions of working status by gender, and age group. This accounts for differential non-response on these variables.

Design Effect

The design effect for the Northern Ireland core and boost dataset is 1.45. The actual sample size divided by the design effect equals the effective sample size, which for Northern Ireland core and boost is 321 cases.

Profile of the achieved sample

Table 9 below shows the profile of the unweighted and weighted Northern Ireland combined sample for a range of variables used in weighting. These are compared to the population totals.

Wales core, boost and reserve sample weighting

The Wave 5 core, boost and reserve samples for Wales comprised 536 interviews. The issued sample in Wales was boosted in the same way as in Northern Ireland, to enable more detailed analysis. Because response rates were lower than anticipated, an extra (reserve) sample for Wales was issued in addition.

For Wales, new selection weights were calculated at this stage to account for the reserve sample. The achieved interviews were then calibrated to known Wales population distributions of working status by gender, and age group. This accounts for differential non-response on these variables.

Design Effect

The design effect for Wales core and boost dataset is 1.63. The actual sample size divided by the design effect equals the effective sample size, which for Wales core and boost is 328 cases.

Profile of the achieved sample

Table 10 below shows the profile of the unweighted and weighted Wales core, boost and extra survey samples for a range of variables used in weighting. These are compared to the population totals.

Data files

After completion of the coding and editing process, quality control checks and data cleaning were undertaken by the Data Manager at NatCen to ensure the structural integrity and content of the data were intact and as expected. The Data Manager also produced derived variables required for reporting. These were independently checked before being added to the master files. The dataset was produced using IBM SPSS and is available in full via the UK Data Archive and www.data.gov.uk.

Food and You

Dear Sir or Madam,

The food we eat, and where it comes from, is important to us all. We would like to invite your household to take part in Food and You, a major study in England, Wales and Northern Ireland about how we shop for, cook and eat food.

Food and You is funded by the Food Standards Agency (FSA), the independent government department responsible for making sure that the food we eat is safe, and that it is what it says it is. This research provides a vital source of information to support the important work of the FSA. We rely on your goodwill and cooperation to make the study a success.

What's next?

Your interviewer from the National Centre for Social Research (NatCen) will call at your address in the next week or so. They will explain more about the study, randomly select one person from your household aged 16 or over to take part and arrange a convenient time to do the interview. Your interviewer will show you a photo ID card, so you know who they are.

Complete confidentiality

We take great care to protect the confidentiality of the information people give us and we take careful steps to ensure that the information is secure at all times.

Any questions?

For more information, please see the back of this letter. You can also visit www.natcen.ac.uk/foodandyou email at foodandyou@natcen.ac.uk or call on Freephone 0800 652 9296. We will be happy to answer any questions.

Frequently asked questions

What is the interview about?

We would like to ask you a range of questions about shopping for, cooking and eating food. We are interested in what you do when eating at home, and when you eat out. We would also like to hear where you get your information about food from, whether you or anyone in your household have any food allergies, and whether you ever struggle to buy the food you would like to eat?

Taking part is voluntary and you do not have to answer any questions you do not want to, just ask your interviewer to move on to the next one. Most people find it an interesting and enjoyable experience.

Why has my address been selected?

Your household has been selected at random from the Royal Mail's publicly-available list of residential addresses in the UK. It is important to have a strictly random selection so that the results reflect the experiences and views of the whole population.

What is the Food Standards Agency?

The Food Standards Agency (FSA) is the independent government department in England, Wales and Northern Ireland that is responsible for making sure that the public can trust that the food they buy and eat is safe and honest. The FSA works to ensure that food is safe and what it says it is, that we have access to an affordable healthy diet, and can make informed choices about what we eat. For more information about the FSA and its work please visit www.food.gov.uk.

Who is carrying out the study?

NatCen Social Research (NatCen) is carrying out the study on behalf of the FSA. NatCen is an impartial research agency, independent of all government departments and political parties. For more information about NatCen visit www.natcen.ac.uk.

What will happen to any information I give?

We will handle your data in accordance with Data Protection legislation. The results collected will be used for research and statistical purposes only. Your answers will be put together with the answers collected from the thousands of other people who take part and the survey findings will be published in a report. Your personal details will be removed so that the findings we publish will not identify you.

A copy of the dataset, excluding any personal details, will be archived at the UK Data Archive and made available for registered users to analyse. The FSA will also publish a reduced version, excluding any personal details, of the data on their website.

Your personal details will only be known to the team processing the results at NatCen Social Research unless you explicitly give consent for your personal details to be passed on to the FSA so that they, or an organisation acting on their behalf, could ask you further questions about the study or invite you to take part in future research. All personal details will be stored securely and will be held for two years.

What is Food and You?

Your household has been invited to take part in Food and You, a major study carried out every two years with thousands of households across England, Wales and Northern Ireland. We would like to hear about the food you eat, how you buy and cook it, whether you eat out, and where you get your information about food from. We're also interested in your experiences. For example, have you ever had food poisoning, do you have any food allergies or intolerances, do you ever struggle to buy the food you would like to eat?

The results of this research are an important source of information for the Food Standards Agency (FSA). They help the FSA to improve food safety, prioritise its work, and provide people with the best information to help them make choices around food. The FSA needs a representative picture of the whole population, and it is important to interview you, even if you have little or no involvement or interest in cooking or shopping for food.

Do you like to cook, eat takeaway or eat out?

Have you ever had food poisoning?

What is important to you when deciding where to eat out?

What types of food do you eat?

Help the Food Standards Agency

The Food Standards Agency (FSA) is the independent Government department that is responsible for protecting the public from risks relating to food. The FSA is at the heart of ensuring the food we eat is safe and honest.

Promoting food safety

The FSA provides advice on food safety that reaches millions of people every year, helping consumers make informed decisions about what they eat, and how they cook it.

Hygiene inspections

The FSA runs the Food Hygiene Rating Scheme in partnership with local authorities, providing consumers with information about the hygiene standards of the places where they eat out and shop for food.

Working with retailers

The FSA works closely with retailers and producers, promoting good practices that help minimise the risks from illness from the food that we buy.

Combatting food crime

The FSA's Food Crime Unit investigates criminality affecting the UK's food system, such as the intentional and dishonest adulteration of products, as part of the Agency's work to ensure that we can be confident about where our food comes from, and that it is what it says it is.

Food and You

Food and You helps the Food Standards Agency (FSA) ensure that food we buy and eat is safe and honest. This study is the main source of information about how, where and what people in the UK are eating.

These are some of the things we'd like to ask about.

Shopping around

Do you do the shopping in your household? Where do you buy your food? Do you buy everything at the supermarket or do you visit other shops as well?

In or out?

Do you like to dine out at restaurants or do you prefer to stay at home to eat?

When you eat in, do you prefer to cook your own food or order a takeaway?

How do you learn about food and cooking? Are you an avid viewer of TV programmes like the Great British Bake Off and Masterchef? Do you read cookery books?

Ready,

Views on where your food comes from

What is important to you when shopping for food? How do you decide which meat, fruit and vegetables to buy when shopping?

Food safety

Have you ever had food poisoning? Do you think you are more likely to get food poisoning at home or when you eat out? Are you concerned about hygiene in restaurants?

Bwyd a Chi

Annwyl Syr / Fadam,

Mae'r bwyd yr ydym ni'n ei fwyta, ac o ble mae'n dod, yn bwysig iawn i bob un ohonom ni. Hoffwn wahodd eich aelwyd i gymryd rhan yn 'Bwyd a Chi', astudiaeth fawr yng Nghymru, Lloegr a Gogledd Iwerddon ar y ffordd yr ydym ni'n siopa am fwyd, coginio a bwyta.

Mae Bwyd a Chi yn cael ei ariannu gan yr Asiantaeth Safonau Bwyd (ASB), yr adran lywodraethol annibynnol sy'n gyfrifol am sicrhau bod ein bwyd yn ddiogel, a'i fod yn cyd-fynd â'r hyn sydd ar y label. Mae'r gwaith ymchwil hwn yn ffynhonnell hanfodol o wybodaeth i gefnogi gwaith pwysig yr ASB. Rydym ni'n dibynnu ar eich ewyllys da a'ch cydweithrediad i sicrhau bod yr astudiaeth yn llwyddiant.

Beth fydd yn digwydd nesaf?

Bydd eich cyfwelydd o'r Ganolfan Genedlaethol ar gyfer Ymchwil Gymdeithasol (NatCen) yn galw yn eich cyfeiriad yn ystod yr wythnos nesaf. Byddant yn esbonio rhagor am yr astudiaeth, yn dewis un person o'ch cartref sy'n 16 oed neu hŷn i gymryd rhan, a threfnu amser cyfleus i gynnal y cyfweiliad. Beth fydd testun y cyfweliad?

Hoffwn holi amrywiaeth o gwestiynau i chi yn ymwneud â siopa am fwyd, coginio a bwyta. Rydym ni â diddordeb clywed beth rydych chi'n ei wneud wrth fwyta yn y cartref, a phan rydych chi'n bwyta allan. Rydym ni hefyd yn awyddus i glywed o ble rydych chi'n cael eich gwybodaeth am fwyd, p'un a oes gennych chi neu aelod o'r teulu alergeddau neu anoddefiadau bwyd, ac a ydych chi'n cael trafferth prynu'r bwyd yr hoffech chi ei fwyta?

Beth yw Bwyd a Chi?

Rydym ni'n gwahodd eich aelwyd chi i gymryd rhan yn 'Bwyd a Chi', astudiaeth fawr sy'n cael ei chynnal pob dwy flynedd gyda miloedd o gartrefi ar draws Cymru, Lloegr a Gogledd Iwerddon. Hoffem ni glywed am y bwyd rydych chi'n ei fwyta, sut rydych chi'n ei brynu a'i goginio, p'un a ydych chi'n bwyta allan, a ble rydych chi'n cael eich gwybodaeth am fwyd. Rydym ni hefyd eisiau clywed am eich profiadau. Er enghraifft, ydych chi erioed wedi cael gwenwyn bwyd? A oes gennych chi unrhyw alergeddau neu anoddefiadau? Ydych chi'n cael trafferth prynu'r bwyd yr ydych chi eisiau ei fwyta?

Mae canlyniadau'r gwaith ymchwil hwn yn ffynhonnell bwysig o wybodaeth i'r Asiantaeth Safonau Bwyd (ASB). Maen nhw'n helpu'r ASB i wella diogelwch bwyd, blaenoriaethu ei gwaith, a rhoi'r wybodaeth orau i bobl i'w helpu i wneud penderfyniadau am fwyd. Mae angen i'r ASB greu darlun cynrychioladol o'r boblogaeth gyfan, ac mae'n bwysig cyfweild â chi, hyd yn oed os nad oes gennych chi lawer o ddiddordeb mewn coginio neu siopa am fwyd, os o gwbl.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1998. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with disabilities, with 1.5 million people with disabilities employed in the public sector in 1998, compared with 1.2 million in 1980.

There are a number of reasons why the public sector has become an important employer of people with disabilities. One reason is that the public sector has a long history of employing people with disabilities. In the 19th century, the public sector employed people with disabilities in a number of different roles, including as clerks, typists, and stenographers.

Another reason why the public sector has become an important employer of people with disabilities is that the public sector has a number of different departments and agencies, each of which has its own specific needs. This means that the public sector can employ people with disabilities in a wide range of roles, from clerical to professional.
